

Victoria is a qualified Duty Solicitor specialising in criminal defence.

After obtaining a degree in Ancient History with honours from Royal Holloway University she went on to study Law at The College of Law in London, firstly undertaking the Graduate Diploma in Law and then going on to complete the Legal Practice Course.

During her time at The College of Law, Victoria was awarded a Legal Aid funded training contract with a leading criminal law firm, this was one of only 350 awarded across the country.

Victoria successfully completed her training contract in 2009 and qualified as a Solicitor the same year. Upon qualification she moved to Reeves & Co Solicitors in Kent where she achieved Duty Solicitor status within 5 months of qualification.

Victoria is a senior solicitor within the firm dealing primarily with gang related crime from our London office.